MARINE CORPS BASE CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. - Employees of Clark Construction/McCarthy, a Joint Venture, place one of the hospital corpsmen that was removed from the Naval Hospital Camp Pendleton Hospital Corpsman Combat Memorial on a pallet for transportation to storage. The statues on the monument are being individually removed and will be reassembled on a new base at the replacement Naval Hospital. The new monument is scheduled to be completed later this year. The Hospital Corpsman Combat Memorial was created by the late Raul Avina, a World War II veteran who was in the battle of Iwo Jima, and was dedicated in 1983 for the services and sacrifices made by hospital corpsman in carrying out their duties during wartime.
