Tidewater Military Health System - Fiscal Year 2016

Naval Medical Center Portsmouth (NMCP)

Naval Medical Center Portsmouth (NMCP) is the oldest continuously-running hospital in the Navy. More than 5,000 officers, sailors and civilians work in locations from Yorktown to Chesapeake, delivering healthcare to thousands of active duty and retired service members, and their families, in Tidewater. These men and women carry on a tradition of caring and service to country dating back to revolutionary times.

NMCP is located at the approximate site of Fort Nelson (circa-1776) where, in 1827, the Commissioners of the Naval Hospital Fund were granted their request to build the first Naval Hospital. To save money, the bricks of the old Fort Nelson were used in the construction of the hospital. To pay for the construction, every sailor and marine, officer and enlisted, were taxed twenty cents.

The cornerstone was laid on April Second, 1827. John Haviland, a Philadelphia architect, designed and oversaw construction, and the hospital admitted its first patients in 1830. The first hospital building, which stands at the opposite end of Hospital Point, was finally completed in 1833. Surgeon Thomas Williamson was the hospital's first Medical Officer, and Lieutenant J. J. Young was the first superintendent.
