GME positions listed are projections and subject to change according to operational and manning requirements.

Release from Active Duty (RAD) to NADDS selections will be considered per reference (b) of the current year's BUMEDNOTE 1524 for specialties with "YES" in the RAD to NADDS column.

¹PGY-2 applicants for Gynecologic Surgery and Obstetrics, Orthopedic Surgery, Otolaryngology, and Urology will be considered with medical student applicants for PGY-1 positions.

PGY-2 applicants who did not complete a preliminary year in these specialties will have to complete most or all the PGY-1 year as a "resintern."

²Includes an additional year of Navy-sponsored fellowship training to obtain a Master of Public Health degree.

³Neurosurgery PGY-2 training opportunity is dependent on the current PGY-1 trainee pipeline.

⁴Applications for Ophthalmology will be considered for pre-selection to residency in AY-2028. Medical student applicants will complete a Transitional Year beginning in AY-2027.

AY-2027 NON-CLINICAL GRADUATE EDUCATION SELECTION GOAL

Training	AY-2027
	Goal
Master of Health Care Delivery Science	1

Master of Health Care Delivery Science. The 12-month Dartmouth Master of Health Care Delivery Science Program is a blended online and on-campus program, with three annual 2-week in-person sessions. Selected members remain under their current or prospective orders while participating. The interdisciplinary curriculum blends research and teaching from the Geisel School of Medicine and the Tuck School of Business. Naval Medical Leader and Professional Development Command will provide the funding for the program and in-person training. Applicants require commanding officer endorsement affirming: non-deployable status for the program duration; support for the in-person sessions; and approximately 15 hours per week of protected time for coursework. Dartmouth Master of Health Care Delivery Science graduates incur an active duty obligation, per reference (d), served consecutively with any prior active duty obligations. Selected candidates are required to apply for a command or milestone billet through the standard process, including screening and slating. For program details and application submission, visit the Dartmouth MHCDS: Navy application portal available at:
