Temple University Hospital:

Temple University Hospital is pleased to offer one categorical position in its General Surgery training program through the military match process.

Temple University Hospital is situated in Northern Philadelphia and its mission is to serve the patients within that community. The residency program is focused on developing not only strong clinicians, but future leaders in surgery. Through a combination of operative experience, clinical service, didactics and simulation, our residents complete their training as competent and caring surgeons that are competitive applicants for fellowship or have the ability to go directly into clinical practice. Additionally, residents have the opportunity to participate in research, hospital committees, wellness initiatives, advocacy and quality improvement. The Department of Surgery is dedicated to the residency and to each individual resident and puts the education of the trainees at the forefront of every Temple surgery initiative.

For more information about the Temple University General Surgery residency, please visit our website at <https://medicine.temple.edu/departments-centers/clinical-departments/surgery/residency-program>

For those interested in applying, please forward the below documents to the Program Director, Liz Dauer (Elizabeth.dauer@tuhs.temple.edu) and the program coordinators, Kiesba Herrin (Kiesba.herrin@tuhs.temple.edu) and Ashley Regan (Ashley.Regan@tuhs.temple.edu) by August 23, 2024.

1. Curriculum Vitae
2. Personal Statement/Letter of Intent
3. Self-reported licensing exam scores (USMLE and/or COMLEX)
4. Notice if you intend to participate in the couples match

Following review of the initial application material, invitations to interview will be sent via email by September 4, 2024. Interviews will take place on September 18th from 9am-noon. If you have any questions, please reach out via email to either Dr. Dauer or Ashley Regan.

University of Alabama:

UAB, as a high-volume Level I Trauma Center and the third largest academic medical system in the country, is an ideal place for military medical professionals to train and integrate. UAB has long-standing military-civilian relationships with the Air Force, including the Special Operations Surgical Teams (SOST) which have been stationed at UAB since 2010, and the Special Operations Center for Medical Integration and Development (SOCMID) based at UAB which trains nearly 150 pararescue specialists and medics annually.

UAB's trauma team is also made up of a high percentage of active-duty service members and veterans, giving faculty a unique level of understanding of what is required for military trainees.

Military residents in UAB's GSRP have the opportunity to learn from nationally recognized military leaders.

Applicants who wish to apply to our program should send the following application materials to generalsurgery@uabmc.edu in a single email by August 25, 2024:

Indiana University School of Medicine:

Program website: Indiana University School of Medicine | Department of Surgery

The IU General Surgery residency program distinguishes itself from others with unique opportunities to be well prepared for life as an Expeditionary General Surgeon. The PD, Dr. Matt Ritter is a retired Colonel who served as the Program Director at Walter Reed National Military Medical Center from 2014-2020. Additionally, as an alumnus of both the US Air Force Academy and Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, Dr. Ritter can provide insight and guidance for your military surgical career. Dr. Peter Hammer, faculty in our Division of Acute Care Surgery, also has active-duty experience and prior service in a military-civilian partnership trauma program. Combined, the two have spent more than 700 days in the deployed environment and know what this level of service requires. The IU general surgery operative experience in high value deployment related areas such as operative trauma, liver surgery, & pancreas surgery are traditionally 4 – 7 times higher than ACGME requirements. Residents will practice at two adult and one Pediatric ACS Level 1 Trauma Centers and a world-class Burn Unit. As an IU General Surgery graduate, you will be well prepared to care for those in harm's way.

The General Surgery Residency program at IU School of Medicine will offer one interview date for the military-civilian match: 26 September 2024

Applications must include:

1. Curriculum Vitae
2. Personal statement (can be the same as in their application packet);
3. Self-report of licensing examination scores including number of attempts; (USMLE Step 1 & 2 required)
4. Self-report of medical school grades/rotation evaluations;
5. Self-report of adverse comments in medical school, military, or GME records that might appear in your file;
6. Notice if you intend to participate in the couples match.

To be considered for an interview, documents should be emailed to Mimi Arrington at (mimiarri@iu.edu) no later than midnight eastern on Sunday, 8 Sep 2024. Those selected for an interview will be notified on Monday, 16 September or Wednesday, 18 September depending on the number of applicants. Only 20 of the most qualified applicants based on our holistic review will be interviewed. Applicants must also complete a full application in MODS.
