Coronavirus Update

First and Finest,

We wanted to provide an update on the Coronavirus that you may have heard about or seen in the news. Currently, there are no potential coronavirus patients or cases at Navy Medical Center Portsmouth or any other local hospitals in the area. If this changes, our expert team is trained to safely care for any potential patient while ensuring safety protocols are in place to avoid any exposures to our staff and other patients. We are coordinating with local hospitals to ensure the safety of all of you, but also our local community.

We are closely monitoring the coronavirus outbreak in the U.S. and its potential presence in Virginia. Our emergency management protocols are in place with a dedicated team to monitor and follow the coronavirus closely.

Please take a look at the following article and please utilize the Center for Disease Control and Prevention website. Please continue to check back to this page for any update.

Military Health article: https://health.mil/News/Articles/2020/01/24/Coronavirus